The father of John Dixon, the founder of the City of Dixon, Illinois, was also named John Dixon. He was born at Newcastle-on-Tyne, Northumberland, England, January 14, 1750. He came to America as a soldier in the British Army during the Revolution. He married Elizabeth Purdy at New York, October 16, 1783. She was born in Westchester County New York, September 1, 1763, and died at Rye, New York, December 22, 1807. He died at Rye, New York, August 8, 1809.

John and Elizabeth Purdy Dixon were the parents of ten children, as follows: John, James Purdy, Elijah, Eliza, Elizabeth, Margaret L., Phebe, Thomas, Catherine and Mary J.

John Dixon married Rebecca Sherwood of Peekskill, New York, at New York City on October 1, 1808. On April 13, 1820, Mr. and Mrs. Dixon and their sons James P., John W., and Elijah, left New York for Illinois. With them went Mr. Dixon's sister, Elizabeth and her husband, Charles S. Boyd and family. The party traveled by ox team in a single covered wagon thru New Jersey and Pennsylvania to Pittsburgh. They shipped their household goods by boat from New York to New Orleans, thence up the Mississippi river to Illinois. At Pittsburgh, they purchased a flat boat for thirty dollars, and floated downstream to Shawneetown, Illinois. Seventy days were necessary for the trip from New York to Shawneetown. The flat boat was sold for five dollars. The party went overland from Shawneetown to a place known as the "Marine Settlement" in Madison County, remaining there for a short time, then went north to Fancy Creek, which is in Sangamon county, about eight miles northerly of the present city of Springfield. The John Dixon family moved from Fancy Creek to Peoria upon his appointment as the first Circuit Clerk of Peoria County in 1825. While residing at Peoria he became a contractor for carrying of the mails, one of his contracts being for the route from Peoria to Galena, Illinois. Most of the trips were made by men hired by him. A major obstacle on the Peoria-Galena route was the safe passage over the Rock River.

John Dixon induced Joseph Ogee, a French-Indian half-breed, to establish a ferry on the mail route at the present site of Dixon. The John Dixon family moved from Peoria and built a cabin, in the spring of 1828, in the present town of Milo, in Bureau County, where they lived until 1830, when he sold the cabin to his brother-in-law, Charles S. Boyd, and moved to Ogee's Ferry, (now Dixon) arriving there with his family April 11, 1830. The reason for the change was to enable him to occupy a more central position for his mail contract work. He leased the ferry in March 1830 from Ogee and operated it under the lease until January 27, 1832, when Ogee executed his deed to John Dixon, which was recorded in Jo Daviess County, March 1, 1832 in Book A pages 162 and 163. The Dixon family lived in the one-story log cabin purchased from Ogee until Mr. Dixon built a two-story addition to the original building.

Elizabeth and Charles S. Boyd moved to the cabin purchased from John Dixon and the home became known as "Boyd's Grove". Later, they moved to Princetown, Illinois, where they were long prominent and highly respected, thruout the remainder of their lives. Mrs. Boyd died at Princetown October 14, 1875. Mr. Boyd died at Princetown November 12, 1881. There are many descendants of Mr. and Mrs. Boyd, in several generations, residing in Bureau County, Illinois, and elsewhere.

John and Rebecca Dixon were the parents of twelve children. Seven died in infancy and there is no record of their names or the dates of their births or deaths; Franklin died at the age of 16 years and Elijah died, unmarried, March 15, 1843, aged 25 years and five months.

Only three of John Dixon's children left surviving children: James Purdy, John W. and Mary L., who had married Isaac S. Boardman.

John W. Dixon was survived by three children, all of whom died unmarried.

Therefore, to ascertain who are the present descendants of John Dixon, we are limited to the consideration of his children James Purdy Dixon and Mary L. Dixon Boardman, and their many descendants.

James Purdy Dixon married Fanny Reed December 7, 1834. They had eight children. Of them, Susan Fisher married Amos Goodwin December 3, 1861. She died September 15, 1878, survived by James Purdy Goodwin, born February 18, 1863 and Isaac Benjamin Goodwin, born September 13, 1865. Sarah Dixon married George Washington Goodwin April 13, 1870. They were the parents of eight children, only three of whom have descendants: Charles Dixon Goodwin, Rosanna Dixon Goodwin Richardson and Henrietta Goodwin Hutchins.

The two Goodwin families moved from Dixon and for many years most of their descendants have resided at or in the vicinity of Sioux City, Iowa, and in Nebraska and South Dakota.

Many of the descendants of James Purdy and Fanny Reed Dixon have been raised and resided at Dixon, Illinois. Some of them reside elsewhere in Illinois and in other States.

Henrietta Dixon, the first white child born at Dixon, June 30, 1836, was married April 10, 1860, to William Henderson Richards, and soon thereafter moved to Moline, Illinois. Most of their descendants reside in that vicinity.

Elizabeth Dixon married William Barge August 19, 1856. None of their descendants now reside at Dixon.

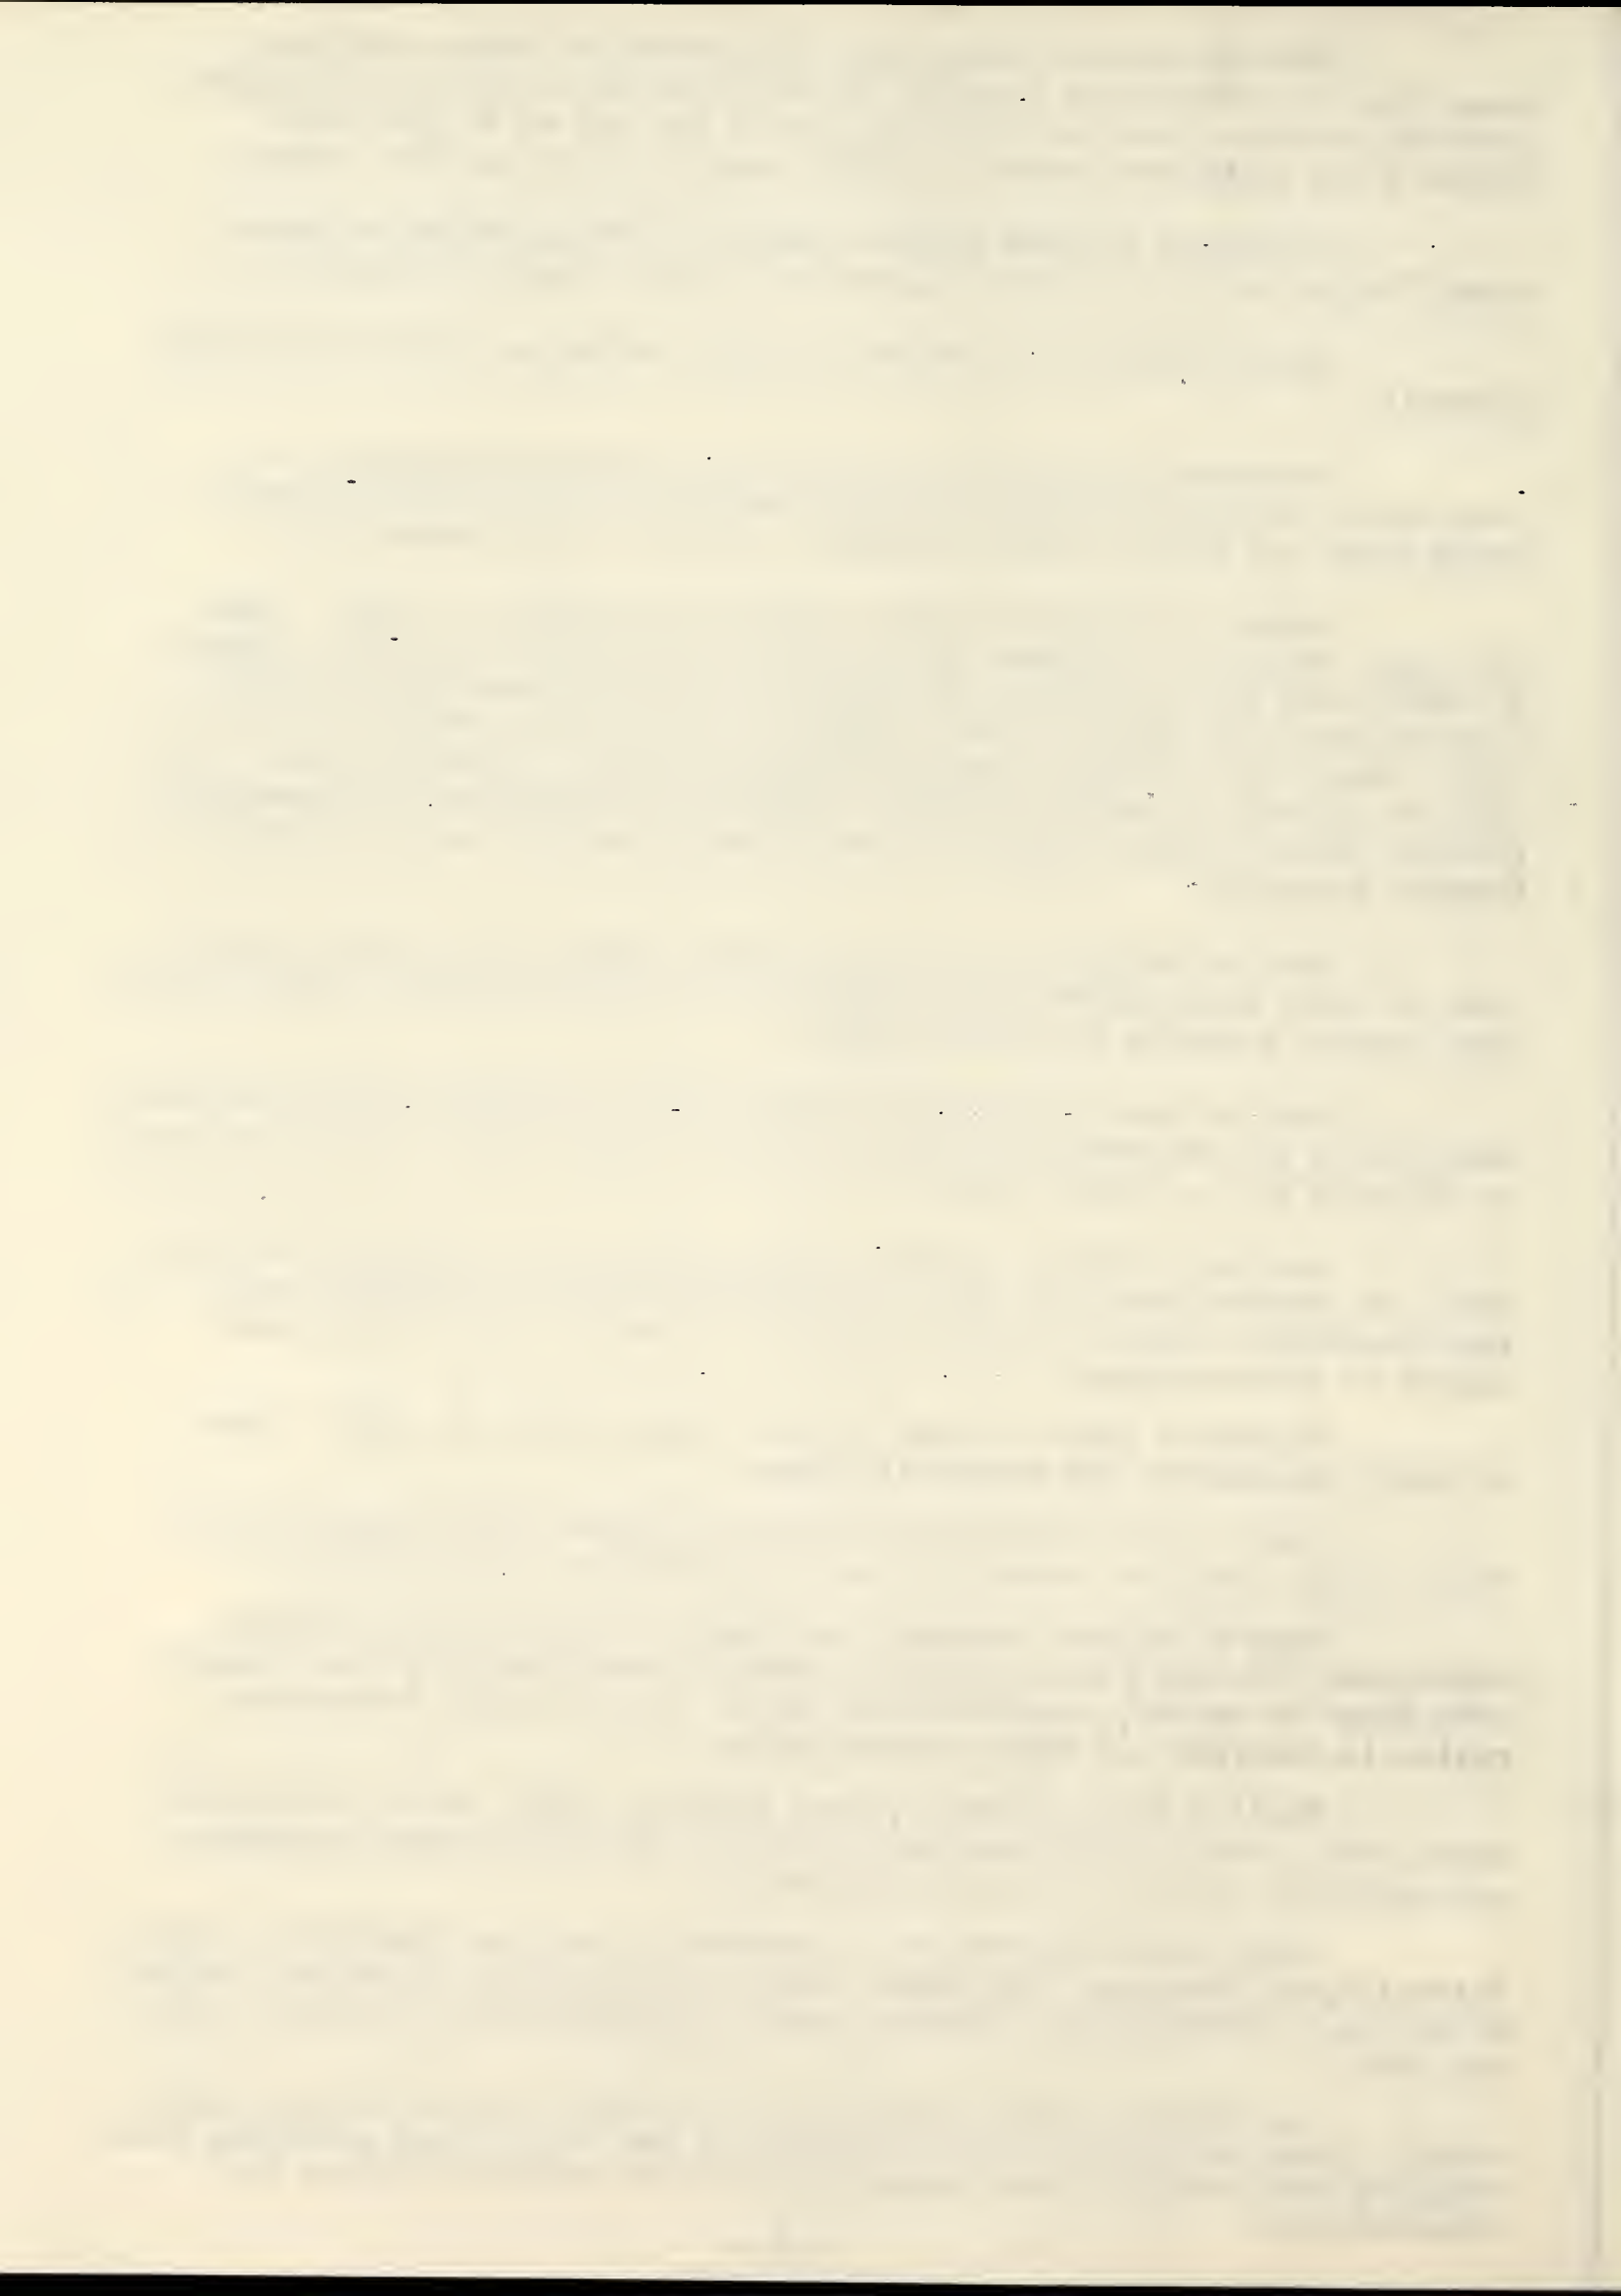

Mary L. Dixon Boardman had three children, John Dixon who was born in 1844 and died unmarried, Mary Elizabeth and William Henry.

Mary Elizabeth Boardman born June 8, 1842, married Charles Coatsworth Pinckney (later spelled Pinkney by that family). They moved from Dixon to Denver, Colorado about 1873. Most of their descendants reside in Colorado and other western States.

William Henry Boardman, born August 3, 1846, moved to New York about 1873, married Henrietta Frances Hall, and most of his descendants are residents of New York and nearby States.

John Dixon Boardman was a graduate of the law department of the University of Michigan. He became interested in mining in Arizona and was killed by a desperado in a dispute over a contested claim, between 1873 and 1880.

In assembling the records of the several branches of the Dixon family, facts relating to other branches of the family have sometimes been repeated thus making it more convenient for the reader to follow the relationship.

The principal purpose of this publication is to assemble information regarding the descendants of John and Rebecca Dixon. It is not planned to relate the many important and interesting incidents in their lives which contributed so much to the settlement and development of Northern Illinois and have been quite fully recorded in the published State and local histories.

However, a few matters of interest will be briefly referred to. During his residence in New York City, after 1805, John Dixon was a tailor and clothing merchant, on Chatham street. He was one of the founders and a member of the Board of Directors of the Young Men's Bible Society of New York, organized February 16, 1809. He was well acquainted with Robert Fulton and was in the party on the first trial trip of the Clermont, and paid Mr. Fulton one dollar fare, the first passenger fare on a steam boat.

John Dixon lived among the Indians and they recognized him as their friend. He operated the ferry and carried on an extensive trade with the Indians. With his wife, their cabin was used as a tavern to provide lodging and food for the travelers. Their cabin was an open house for the accommodation of all whose business or adventures brought them to the frontier. He was the Postmaster and guide to those needing assistance and was recognized as the leading character and first citizen of northwestern Illinois. During the Black Hawk Indian War in 1832, he had the contract to furnish the United States Army with beef.

John Dixon traveled over most of the new State of Illinois on horseback and on foot, he lived with and among the Indians and was recognized as their friend. Although in good health his hair was white and worn long, giving him the appearance of old age. The Winnebago tribe of Indians called him "Nachusa" meaning in their language "Hoad-hair-white".

Noah Brooks was a Dixon resident from 1856 to 1859. He was born in Castine, Maine in 1830, and was employed in newspaper work on the Dixon Telegraph. He met Abraham Lincoln at Dixon during the Fremont campaign in 1856. It is established that Lincoln spoke in Dixon July 17, 1856. Their friendship continued through the Lincoln-Douglas debates in 1858. He went to California in 1859 and did not see Lincoln again until late in 1862 when he went to Washington as a Sacramento newspaper correspondent. Their comradeship was quickly renewed and ripened into intimacy.

He became a secretary to President Lincoln in the later years of his term as President. A letter from Mr. Brooks to Frank R. Dixon February 21, 1896, states: "While I was in Washington with Lincoln, he often referred to his experience in the Black Hawk War, and his visit to Dixon, knowing (as he did), that he had met me in Dixon during and after the Fremont campaign. He remembered your grandfather and his Indian name - Na-chu-sa and asked if he were then alive." Early in his residence in Dixon John Dixon became commonly referred to as "Father Dixon" and the use of that term continues to the present time whenever he is mentioned.

April 16, 1832, Governor Reynolds issued a call for men for military service stating "Your country requires your services. The Indians have assumed a hostile attitude and have invaded the State in violation of the Treaty of last Summer. The British band of Sacs and other hostile Indians, headed by Black Hawk, are in possession of the Rock River country, to the great terror of the frontier inhabitants. I consider the settlers on the frontiers to be in imminent danger." April 16, Abraham Lincoln enlisted at Richland Creek, Sangamon County, and was elected Captain. He was mustered into State service at Boardstown April 22 and into United States service at the mouth of Rock River May 3. Upon being mustered out at the mouth of Fox River May 27 he re-enlisted as a Private in Captain Elijah Ilos' Company. When that enlistment expired he re-enlisted again on June 16 at Fort Wilbourn in Capt. Jacob M. Early's Company. He was finally mustered out of service at White Water River, Wisconsin, July 10, 1832. Lincoln was stationed at Fort Dixon during part of each of his three enlistments. Associated with Lincoln at Fort Dixon were Col. Zachary Taylor, Lieut. Jefferson Davis, Lieut. Robert Anderson, Lieut. Albert Sidney Johnston, Maj. John Dement and others who later became noted public men. In 1930 the State of Illinois purchased the site of Fort Dixon and erected a bronze statue of Abraham Lincoln thereon.

John Dixon's well-preserved ferry and account books, along with many other interesting items, contains an account run by Col. Zachary Taylor, May 10 and 15, 1832, for "pr. shoes for man $1.50" and numerous other small items, totaled at $6.50 and marked "Settled by note".

A Bill was introduced and passed in Congress to award Mr. Dixon a quarter section of land for services rendered during the Black Hawk War. On June 8, 1860, when the Bill was before the United States Senate, Jefferson Davis, then a Senator from Mississippi, spoke for the Bill, his remarks including the following statement: "He was of great service in the first settlement of the country. He was of service to the troops when they ascended the Rock River in the Black Hawk War. For some time a post was established at or near his house. He was of service at that time furnishing supplies and giving information in regard to the country, and afterwards taking care of the sick. * * I should be glad because of his many services in the first settlement of that country, to see him thus rewarded."

The Illinois Legislature, in 1837, passed an Act to create a Board of Commissioners of Public Works, to have charge of an extensive scheme of internal improvements including railroad construction and river improvements. Governor Joseph Duncan, appointed John Dixon a Commissioner, to fill a vacancy on the Board, August 8, 1838. Abraham Lincoln was a signer on a petition to the Governor recommending his appointment. At the following regular session of the Legislature the Commissioners were elected, and Mr. Lincoln, then a Representative, on February 19, 1839, voted for Mr. Dixon, who was elected for a full term and his commission was signed by Governor Thomas Carlin February 22, 1839.

Regarding John Dixon's political affiliations, Stevens History of Lee County page 257, (1914) states "Mr. Dixon in his early life was a Whig but became a Republican when that party was formed. He attended the first Republican convention at Bloomington May 29, 1856 and made a speech at the convention at the time of the organization of the party." The Chicago Press and Democrat of June 7, 1856, includes his name in the list of Lee County delegates to the convention. The Chicago Historical Society has a letter he wrote August 7, 1841, to Postmaster Edward Warren of Rockford, Illinois, on regard to the appointment of the Register of the Land Office by the President, stating in part: "Our majority in this county was thirty-five in Nov'r election" referring to the election of William Henry Harrison, the Whig candidate for President in 1840. A newspaper write-up of John Dixon, published shortly after General Grant was elected President, referred to his service on the Federal court jury at Chicago, stated "At the time of the last Presidential election Dixon was foreman of the grand jury in Chicago, the court adjourned to allow its members to vote. Dixon went home and cast his vote for Grant and says he would rather have walked 400 miles than have missed casting what he considers his last vote."

As a youth John Dixon joined the Oliver Street Baptist Church of New York and was superintendent of its Sunday School, and was a constant attendant at the Baptist Church in Dixon and contributed liberally to its support. He was one of the founders and a director of the Young Men's Bible Society of New York, instituted February 16, 1809, a forerunner of the American Bible Society.

Rebecca Dixon was one of the organizers of the Baptist Church in Dixon, May 16, 1838, and had school classes held in their home before the first school house was built. Events in the lives of John and Rebecca Dixon are fully recorded in the numerous histories and other local publications. She died February 9, 1847, before the northern Illinois territory was well settled, a century before the developments of our present generation, yet in a Lee County published in 1893, the author wrote "I have written what I have, that the memory of the virtues which shone more conspicuously in the life of Mrs. Dixon might not be overshadowed and lost sight of in this fast ago in which we are living."

John Dixon held numerous other positions of honor and importance and was always very active in support of movements for the advancement of northwestern Illinois. The Town of Dixon was not legally incorporated until 1853. Then, on March 7, 1853, John Dixon was elected president of the board of trustees, thus, in effect, becoming the first Mayor of Dixon, later incorporated as a city in 1859.

Rebecca Dixon died February 9, 1847, and their son, John W. Dixon, died March 19, 1847. Their last surviving child, James Purdy Dixon, died April 5, 1853. Thus, the father of twelve children, he had survived all of them and his wife. Thereafter he made his home at the residence of his daughter-in-law, Mrs. John W. Dixon and her three children. The dwelling still stands and is occupied. There John Dixon died on July 6, 1876, having retained his mental vigor and remarkable physical strength until the end. A Dixon newspaper stated that "the old ferryman softly drifted away from the shore of time over the rippling waters and on last Thursday morning at half-past seven he landed on the other side - never to return. His name need not be inscribed in the Pantheon of history; as long as the waters of the Rock River continue to flow; as long as its valley blooms or this city lasts; as long as there is a pen to write or a tongue to utter, John Dixon will live in memory, cherished and revered."

The family records herein set forth are the result of the assistance of many members of the Dixon family. Special appreciation must be expressed to Miss Mary L. Richards, Mrs. Louise Mitchell, Mrs. Rosanna Richardson, Mrs. Henrietta Hutchins, Mrs. Sarah Goodwin Oehlerking and Mrs. Anne Calef Boardman (widow of Francis Boardman), 175 East 71st Street, New York 21.

John and Rebecca Dixon's descendants now total 274, of whom 209 are living, 65 are deceased. (Adopted children are not counted above.) All of the children and grand-children are deceased. Of the descendants living, six are great-grand-children and the others are in the next three younger generations. (They are living in nineteen states, the District of Columbia and Vienna, Austria.)

The six living great-grand-children are as follows:

THE FAMILY OF JOHN DIXON WHO CAME FROM ENGLAND.

John Dixon was born at Newcastle-on-Tyne, England, January 14, 1750. He came to America in the British Army in the Revolution. He married Elizabeth Purdy at New York City October 16, 1783. She was born in Westchester County, New York, September 1, 1763 and died December 22, 1807. John Dixon died at Rye, Westchester County, New York, August 8, 1809. John and Elizabeth Purdy Dixon were the parents of ten children. Reference has been made to Elizabeth Dixon Boyd and her family, who moved to Illinois in 1820, with the family of her brother, John Dixon. This publication does not pretend to be a complete record of the families of the brothers and sisters of John Dixon and Mrs. Boyd. Altho considerable effort has been made to obtain information about the brothers and sisters of John Dixon and Elizabeth Dixon Boyd, the investigation has not been completed and some of the dates are not satisfactorily determined. As far as it can be ascertained, the marriage of John and Elizabeth Purdy Dixon and records of their children is as follows:

The first part of the paper is devoted to a discussion of the various methods which have been proposed for the determination of the rate of reaction between a solid and a liquid. These methods are classified into three groups: (1) methods based on the measurement of the change in weight of the solid, (2) methods based on the measurement of the change in volume of the liquid, and (3) methods based on the measurement of the change in concentration of the liquid. The first two groups of methods are applicable to reactions in which the solid is a reactant, while the third group is applicable to reactions in which the solid is a product.

The second part of the paper is devoted to a discussion of the various factors which influence the rate of reaction between a solid and a liquid. These factors are classified into three groups: (1) factors which influence the rate of reaction between a solid and a liquid in general, (2) factors which influence the rate of reaction between a solid and a liquid in which the solid is a reactant, and (3) factors which influence the rate of reaction between a solid and a liquid in which the solid is a product.
